The ETA, in conjunction with e:lit, the Primary English Teachers' Association, has received a grant from the Australian Government Quality Teacher Programme for a project to develop literature programs in years 5-8 across high schools and their feeder primary schools. Participation in the project involves

- focussing on a form or feature of literary texts and its manifestation in print and electronic texts
- programming collaboratively with other English teachers and teachers from feeder primary schools for a continuum of learning in this area
- integrating ICT into content delivery and professional conversations

The project will provide

- access to 2 video conferences exploring
  - the forms, features and structures of literary texts through a focus on characterisation
  - the ways that character may be realised in different media
  - online collaborative technologies and procedures
  - collaborative models emerging from these activities.
- support by a subject and programming expert
- lines of communication between primary and secondary schools
